Season's Greetings to all!

As this year comes to an end, we want to take this opportunity to thank you for your participation in and support of the Triangle Insight Meditation Community. In looking back over the past several years, we find our hearts warmed by how the sangha has blossomed, and trust that we will continue to accomplish our mission of supporting and deepening your practice of insight meditation.

Another dimension of our mission is to explore the relevance of the ancient teachings of the Buddha for our contemporary lives. As lay practitioners this aspect of practice is fundamental as we are encouraged to use our lives as a vehicle for awakening, to continually see if we are living in line with the Dharma. From this perspective an appropriate question would be, “how do we understand our lives, and how are we living?” As the Buddha instructed, look to see where you are suffering. What better time to apply this investigation than the holiday season, with all the challenges and opportunities that this time of year may bring.

One sangha member recently quipped, "reflecting on the holidays, we are reminded of the dysfunction in our families, and all the hustle and bustle makes us want to curl up and hibernate in our beds!" Although said in jest, and a little levity helps, there was probably some truth to this statement. If so, it sounds like some form of suffering. Fortunately for us the Buddha's approach to suffering has not changed in over 2500 years. What he taught is as relevant today as it was then: suffering is to be understood, it's cause abandoned, it's cessation realized, and the path to accomplish this is to be developed. He served by example, embodying the principles he was teaching, leaving us a set of instructions which have been passed on and have endured down through the ages.

This path the Buddha encouraged all of his followers to develop is what is known as the Noble Eightfold Path, which we have addressed in numerous talks at Triangle Insight and will continue to discuss, as it is a cornerstone of his teachings. If you have yet to explore this in some detail for yourselves, we encourage you to do so in the coming year. We are fortunate to have contemporary Buddhist scholars like Bhikkhu Bodhi who translate and synthesize these teachings, making them accessible to all. A wonderful starting point would be his freely available writings on the topic from Access to Insight, one mouse-click away at this link: The Noble Eightfold Path: The Way to the End of Suffering.

May we all move through this holiday season with curiosity, openness, acceptance, and loving-kindness in the hopes that each experience can be transformed into a valuable teaching, moving us toward awakening.

Opening to Life:

A New Year's Insight Dialogue Retreat with Phyllis Hicks and Florence Meleo-Meyer
"All experience is preceded by mind."  Buddha

We go through much of life living out of habit. Coasting along on autopilot, we are unaware of the underlying views that shape our perceptions and create the very lives we lead. A simple pause into mindfulness and wisdom can shift our thoughts and perceptions yielding insight and release from stress.

Join us for a 3 day residential retreat to contemplate the experience of releasing habitual views, trusting emergence, and opening to life's wisdom. We will cultivate the qualities of mind that blossom naturally into open, wise and compassionate presence in our daily lives.

The practice of Insight Dialogue draws together the stillness of concentration, the brightness of mindfulness, and the deep wisdom of Buddhist teachings. We explore our moment-to-moment experience while meditating in dialogue with others.

For more information and to register please go to this link: www.metta.org: Insight Dialogue: Opening to Life; or contact Marilyn @ marilynhartman@gmail.com. Registration closes on December 21; after that, all questions should be directed to phyllishicks@mindspring.com.

The Stone House
Mebane, NC
January 3 - 6, 2013

A regular, preferably daily meditation practice is considered an integral part of awakening to the Dharma. In the Buddha's formulation of the threefold training of the Noble Eightfold Path (wisdom, morality, concentration), three of the eight path factors are devoted to the concentration group (wise effort, wise mindfulness, and wise concentration), and are associated with the practice of formal meditation. The Buddha thus placed an emphasis on meditation practice, repeatedly exhorting his disciples to go to the foot of a tree or to an empty hut, to sit down with legs crossed, and to place mindfulness before them.

If you find that you are having difficulty establishing a regular meditation practice, then what better time than the New Year to revisit your intention. This on-line program during the month of January is being offered as a way to do just that in the hopes of helping you to develop more devotion to practice. And you don't have to go to the foot of a tree or an empty hut, but can remain in the comfort of your own home! However, you will be encouraged to practice.

During each week of January you will receive links to guided meditations that will help to 1) establish a foundation of concentration, 2) enhance the practice of mindfulness, 3) explore the spaciousness of awareness, and 4) move the heart toward greater loving-kindness, compassion, and equanimity. There will also be suggested readings as well as an opportunity to join in an on-line discussion group. This program is open to those with all levels of meditation practice, and is being offered free of charge, with donations welcomed for the teacher and Triangle Insight.

For more information or to register, contact Ron Vereen at rivereen@aol.com.

Month of January 2013
Triangle Insight Meditation Community

The Practice of Insight Dialogue at Triangle Insight

Insight Dialogue is an interpersonal meditation practice and is offered at Triangle Insight once monthly, usually on the fourth Wednesday of the month. It brings the mindfulness and tranquility of silent meditation directly into our experience with other people. The new website for Insight Dialogue is an excellent resource for learning more about the practice: www.metta.org.

The evening begins with silent meditation practice, followed by gentle mindful movement, and then shifting into dyad practice where interpersonal mindfulness is explored with a partner in response to a contemplation that is offered. The dyad practice is optional so that anyone who chooses to remain in silent practice may do so, rather than shifting into dyad practice. One can investigate the guidance of the contemplation internally, noticing the moment by moment unfolding of internal experience. Also note that the ID practice goes from 6:30 to 8:30 PM to allow for more spaciousness and time for questions. We hope you will be able to join us.

Dharma Contemplation Group

Interested in "preparing for a meeting with the unknown?"

Dharma Contemplation is a companion practice to Insight Dialogue. Like ID it was developed by Gregory Kramer. In Dharma Contemplation we immerse ourselves in a short excerpt of the Buddha’s words and allow them to transform us. By first hearing and then repeatedly reading the text, it saturates our minds. Layer after layer, joined in mindfulness and inquiry, we deepen our understanding and experience of the teachings as we contemplate them together in a small group.

Join us on the fourth Sunday of every month from 3:30 - 5:00. Email Beverly at beverly143@frontier.com, or call Tamara at 919-493-2674, x 114 for more information. The next meeting is 12/30, and in 2013 the following dates have been set: 1/27, 2/24, 3/24, & 4/28.

Book Study Group on Stepping Out of Self-Deception

This study group led by Ron Vereen has been meeting since February 2011, and has completed reading Rodney Smith's book, Stepping Out of Self-Deception. Many in the group expressed interest in taking the exploration further using this same text, and in view of the robust response, Ron has decided to have two groups so as to accommodate as many as possible, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. There is now a wait list for participation, so if interested in being placed on the list in the event space opens up, or if you have questions, please contact Ron at rivereen@aol.com.

Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction Classes

Duke Integrative Medicine

For those of you who would like to have a progressive and systematic instruction in a variety of mindfulness practices from the healthcare perspective, you may want to consider taking one of the classes of the Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction Program at Duke Integrative Medicine. This is an eight-week class that uses a variety of forms of practice to examine the stress in one's life and to help bring about a more skilful way of relating to it. The next cycle will begin with an orientation session the week of January 7, with classes beginning the week of January 14, and running through the week of March 4, with a Day of Mindfulness on February 23. A variety of class times are offered in both Durham and Raleigh/Cary, and financial assistance in defraying some of the cost is available for those who may have that need. In addition, a distance learning class is now offered for those who are unable to attend on site, as well as a research class for qualified participants. For more information or to register, call 919-660-6826 or go to http://www.dukeintegrativemedicine.org. Classes often fill, so you may want to register early.

Other Resources

In addition to Triangle Insight, there are a variety of other meditation opportunities of which we would like for you to be aware. Rather than list them all here, we wanted to point you to the "links" section of our website at Triangle Insight. There are other sitting groups in the community who's practice is similar to ours, as well as resources for retreat centers and other websites, both locally and nationally. We do not offer an endorsement of these sites, but rather a suggestion for your exploration to see if any may have useful information to support your practice of insight meditation. For any questions please contact us at info@triangleinsight.org
Triangle Insight is a Non-Profit!

In December we announced our recent classification as a non-profit with the State of North Carolina, and in June we completed our application to the IRS for designation as a 501(c)(3) religious organization. While we are now officially a non-profit moving towards our 501(c)(3) status with the IRS, we wanted to thank people who volunteered to help us with a Board. Since the most consistent advice we received was to "keep it simple," the Board will consist of the four founding teachers. However, to grow, nourish and support our sangha we need input, advice and energy from us all and we are looking into how to best do that. Your suggestions are always appreciated. Please contact us at info@triangleinsight.org with any ideas or recommendations.
