Greetings to All!

This month we continue to explore the third aggregate of the Noble Eightfold Path as we take a look at the seventh path factor of wise mindfulness (sati). If you ask people what brought them to meditation, most of them would probably say, at least in our current time, that it was something they heard, saw, or read about mindfulness. Since a plethora of media platforms -- from popular to spiritual to scientific -- are currently replete with articles or video's on mindfulness, it behooves us to have a clear understanding of what the Buddha meant by this term, and particularly why he deemed it to be wise.

Buddhist scholars can be helpful for this purpose, elucidating the nuances of the ancient texts which are felt to be the closest thing we have to what the Buddha had to say on this subject. One scholar, Andrew Olendzki, has written a relatively short, albeit comprehensive article titled "The Real Practice of Mindfulness" in which he turns to the Abhidharma to get a more precise consideration of the question, "what is mindfulness?" After giving an overview of the nature of consciousness and the variety of mental factors that arise with it, he delved into this important question, giving us some useful and encouraging information.

Olendzki offers the following from the Abhidharma: unlike ordinary attention, which is a universal mental factor always present in any moment of consciousness, mindfulness is an occasional mental factor, i.e., not routinely present, arising only under special circumstances and with this fourfold definition:

- 1) its characteristic is not wobbling, or keeping the mind from floating away from its object;
- 2) its function is absence of confusion, or non-forgetfulness;
- 3) its manifestation is the state of confronting an objective phenomenal field; &
- 4) its immediate cause is strong perception or the four foundations of mindfulness (i.e., body, feeling, consciousness, and mental objects).

We thus see that in order for mindfulness to arise it must come from the practice of satipatthana, the four foundations of mindfulness, which can lead to a "strong perception" of these phenomena (see Joseph Goldstein's recent book, Mindfulness: A Practical Guide to Awakening). Olendzki also notes that mindfulness is a wholesome mental factor that co-arises with 18 other wholesome mental factors, and suggests we view them all as facets of the same jewel. It's encouraging to know that as long as they are present, none of the 14 unwholesome mental factors will be present in that mind moment. And more importantly, when any one of them does arise, as they inevitably will, we can learn, with practice, to regard them with mindfulness rather than to become lost in them or carried away by them. As soon as we are relating in this way to the unwholesome rather than from it, we skillfully return to a wholesome mind moment, and then can use our powers of discernment to note the difference.

Finally, why is mindfulness considered wise? Olendzki points out that wisdom is not a universal/wholesome factor, thus does not arise automatically with mindfulness and the rest. Since mindfulness helps us to see things as they really are, this insight (another word for wisdom) must be joined with mindfulness in order to bring about a significant change in our understanding. Perhaps this is why Leigh Brasington invites us after every meditation period to reflect on what insights emerged -- a very wise move! Olendski sums it up as follows: "two things are clear: there can scarcely be a more noble capability of the mind than mindfulness, and its cultivation must surely be one of the more beneficial things we can do as human beings."

May our practice of mindfulness join with insight and transform our understanding of self, other, and the world in which we live.

An Evening with Jeff Brantley Being the Knowing: Discovering the Transformative Power of Resting in Awareness in Everyday Life

This talk will focus on the naturalness and immediacy of mindfulness, and the power for liberating insight to emerge when one meets the constantly changing sensory experience of everyday living from the position of awareness.

Jeff Brantley, M.D., is one of the founding faculty members of Duke Integrative Medicine, where he started the Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction program in 1998. He is also a member of the Community of Scholars of the Center for Spirituality, Theology, and Health at Duke University. He is a Consulting Associate in the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences at Duke Medical Center, and teaches intensive courses on mindfulness meditation and conducts extensive experiential programs and group lectures.

Dr. Brantley is the author of Calming Your Anxious Mind: How Mindfulness and Compassion Can Free You from Anxiety, Fear, and Panic and is the co-author, with Wendy Millstine, of the Five Good Minutes series and Daily Meditations for Calming Your Anxious Mind, and most recently, Calming Your Angry Mind: How Mindfulness and Compassion Can Free You from Anger and Bring Peace to Your Life.

The Path of Awakening Together An Insight Dialogue Day of Practice with Janet Surrey and Phyllis Hicks

This day long retreat will introduce the meditation guidelines of Insight Dialogue and offer an opportunity to experience the possibilities of a fully engaged co-meditation practice. We will explore the origins of suffering within relationship as well as the great potential for cultivating the mental factors of awakening while in relationship, including mindfulness, concentration, equanimity, and loving kindness. We will investigate Speaking and Listening as meditative practices held and nourished by the deep foundation of silent practice.

The retreat will be held in Noble Silence with periods of silent practice and Insight Dialogue practice in dyads and small groups. Contemplations from Jan's book, The Buddha's Wife: the Path of Awakening Together, will be offered. Devotional practice to particular relationships in our lives as parents, friends, partners and adult children will be explored as whole life relational practices and a part of the Eightfold Path.

Beginners for Insight Dialogue are welcome, and some prior meditation experience is recommended. This activity is being offered free of charge, with donations accepted to cover the cost of using the facility and to support the study and practice of the teachers. Please bring your own lunch on Saturday. Refrigeration and a microwave are available as needed. Coffee, tea, and snacks will be provided by Triangle Insight.

To make our preparations we are asking you to pre-register if you plan to attend. Upon registering, you will then receive guidelines on how to approach the retreat, along with a proposed schedule.

For more information or to register, please contact Mary at mkgrigsby28@gmail.com (when registering, please include your full name and telephone contact information in the email).

Continuing the Conversation with Betsy Barton

Triangle Insight has now screened the two documentaries on Consider the Conversation, and it was clear that they have inspired dialogue among us around patient-centered care with respect to end of life concerns. There has been a robust response in the interest to continue the conversation, now with 35 of us signing up to receive ongoing information as to how this may unfold. If you would like to be included on the list please let us know at info@triangleinsight.org.

As we learned from Betsy after our two screenings, we have a number of choices as to the direction we may take this inquiry. We would like to invite you to again join Betsy and the sangha as she skillfully guides us in exploring this topic, trusting in the wisdom that emerges from the group.

Dwelling in the Dharma: Integrating Study and Practice A Memorial Day Weekend Residential Retreat with Jeanne van Gemert and Ron Vereen

In one sutta from the ancient texts, AN 5.73, the Buddha was asked "to what extent is one who dwells in the Dharma?" After enumerating the intellectual dimensions of study, teaching, recitation, and examination of the Dharma, the Buddha emphasized the practice of "seclusion." He stated that when committing oneself to "internal tranquility of awareness, ...this is one who dwells in the Dharma." So, how do we find and maintain a balance between study and practice? It appears the Buddha is telling us that if we're going to study, it must be informed by practice.

This residential retreat offers the opportunity to explore this balance in more depth, and to see for ourselves why the Buddha placed emphasis on practice. Time will be devoted to study and practice, the bulk of which will focus on forms of mindfulness meditation that can lead to the direct experience of internal tranquility of awareness, of dwelling in the Dharma, of opening to the formless. We will also see how the very suttas from which these teachings have emerged can be used as guided meditations for practice.

Open to participants with all levels of meditation experience, this retreat will be conducted in Noble Silence, guided by wise view and intention so as to create a container to support wise effort, mindfulness, and concentration. In addition to the forms of practice, group interviews with the teachers will provide further opportunity to integrate study and practice.

Jeanne van Gemert and Ron Vereen have many years of meditation experience and are co-founders of the Triangle Insight Meditation Community, graduates of the Spirit Rock Community Dharma Leader Program, and instructors in the Duke Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction Program.

Cost of the Retreat:

Small Single Occupancy: $305 ($330 after 4/28/16)

The Shramadana Project

A Recent Update on the Volunteer Initiative of Triangle Insight

The Shramadana Project (SP) is a volunteer initiative of the Triangle Insight Meditation Community that has been organized to address some of the needs within the sangha, as well as to provide outreach to the community-at-large.

Mary Mudd, the current coordinator of the SP, has recently convened two meetings of this group to explore ways to meet the needs of our growing sangha and to assess the group's interest in outreach to the community-at-large. We encourage you to review the minutes of both meetings: 11/18/15 and 1/13/16, where you will learn more about these worthwhile and exciting initiatives of the sangha, one of which is the formation of a listserv so as to connect more efficiently among ourselves. Barbara Shumannfang has compiled a list of community organizations seeking volunteers to further their missions of nonviolence, racial and social equity, and supporting youth. The hope is this will be a way to connect us, both within the sangha and in the community, in a variety of volunteer efforts.

As we are now into 2016, many activities on the horizon will need the sangha's support for implementation, including Media Night, the retreats in May and October, Days of Practice (the next one is April 9th), and others that pertain to our recent exploration of issues around diversity in the sangha and end-of-life concerns.

If you would like to experience the fruits of service to the sangha, and are not already on the member list of the SP, please contact Mary at mary@triangleinsight.org. The meetings will be held quarterly, with the next one to be scheduled in April, so stay tuned!

If beings knew, as I know, the results of giving and sharing, they would not eat without having given..."

Organizing Against Racism NC Workshops Being Offered

In response to our efforts to engage the Buddhist teachings around the issues of Racial Justice and Diversity, we would like to recommend the training opportunities available through OARNC as a first step in this investigation. Several members of Triangle Insight have already participated in these workshops and they come highly recommended. A few more from the sangha and other Buddhist communities in the Triangle are planning to attend the Phase I events scheduled for early 2016, and you are encouraged to participate if interested. If three or more attend an event from our sangha, you will each get a discount on the fee for being a part of the Triangle Insight Meditation Community.

TI is contributing $500 to start a scholarship fund for this purpose, and the community is invited to join the initiative by contributing specifically to the scholarship fund. The fund will be available to support TI community members in attending OARNC or other similar trainings. The goal of the initiative is to help individuals and the community to deepen their understanding of the way the mind and human systems are limited by unexamined views of race. The scholarships will be available on a case by case basis to help supplement the cost of registration. To contribute now through PayPal, please donate here.

The plan at present is to keep a log of those from our sangha who participate in these trainings, and then to convene a meeting of this core group of individuals to discuss ideas about the best way forward. The Phase II trainings are designed to assist us in bringing this knowledge back to our community so as to guide us more skillfully in addressing these issues in our own community. For a description of the Phase I & II trainings you may click here.

Please contact us at info@triangleinsight.org if you:
1) have any questions about this initiative; 2) would like to be considered for a scholarship; 3) want to contribute toward a scholarship; and 4) wish to be a part of the core group to discuss our plans after completing the trainings.

Spiritual Friends Groups

xx

Having admirable people as friends, companions, and colleagues is actually the whole of the holy life.

~ The Buddha

In "The Fertile Soil of Sangha," excerpted from his book, Cultivating the Mind of Love, Thich Nhat Hanh writes of the special importance of sangha. "You cannot achieve enlightenment by locking yourself in your room. Transformation is possible only when you are in touch...Taking refuge in the sangha means putting your trust in a community of solid members who practice mindfulness together." The experiences of our group members and the blossoming of our groups are beautiful expressions of the heart's longing for spiritual community and the awakening it supports.

Kalyana Mitta Groups

We currently have openings in two KM groups, our Raleigh group and a new group, Rethinking Buddhism for a Secular Age. We're grateful to Justin Adams, who developed this group, and excited about the interest it has already generated. If you would like to join either of these groups, start a new group, or be on the waiting list for the CH-Carrboro, Durham, or Insight Dialogue groups, please send the KM-RA Questionnaire to Sarah Tillis, KM Coordinator. For more information about any of our KM Groups, please talk with Sarah, visit our KM web page, or email Sarah at sarah@triangleinsight.org.

Racial Affinity Groups

We now have four Racial Affinity groups. The commitment of our sangha to Engaged Buddhism and this important and challenging work is truly inspiring. Three of the groups, two in Durham and one in Chapel Hill-Carrboro, still have openings. Ruth King's Group Guidelines will provide valuable guidance for each group's mindful sharing. Additional information and resources are on our Racial Affinity Groups web page. If you have questions or suggestions, please talk to Sarah Tillis, KM Coordinator, or email her at sarah@triangleinsight.org.

The KM Coordinating Team of Sarah Tillis, Tamara Share, Tom Howlett, and Jeanne van Gemert is very grateful for the commitment of our community. May our Kalyana Mitta and Racial Affinity groups be of great benefit to all.

The Practice of Insight Dialogue at Triangle Insight

Insight Dialogue is an interpersonal meditation practice and is offered at Triangle Insight once monthly, usually on the fourth Wednesday of the month. It brings the mindfulness and tranquility of silent meditation directly into our experience with other people. The new website for Insight Dialogue is an excellent resource for learning more about the practice: www.metta.org.

The evening begins with silent meditation practice, followed by gentle mindful movement, and then shifting into dyad practice where interpersonal mindfulness is explored with a partner in response to a contemplation that is offered. The dyad practice is optional so that anyone who chooses to remain in silent practice may do so, rather than shifting into dyad practice. One can investigate the guidance of the contemplation internally, noticing the moment by moment unfolding of internal experience. Also note that the ID practice goes from 6:30 to 8:30 PM to allow for more spaciousness and time for questions. We hope you will be able to join us.
