Greetings to all!

We suspect that many of us are greeting this November in anticipation of the election results of November 6th. Once the millions have been spent to sway the electorate, and the political spin finally settles with the dust, one side or the other will declare itself the victor. If recent history is predictive, the continual divisiveness of both parties will only perpetuate the divide that holds our nation hostage. We may ask “but what has been won?” Or another way to frame the question is “what has been lost?”

Both questions have complex answers depending on where you look for them, and a thorough exploration requires more space than we have available. But we invite you to sit with these questions in your own practice, and to explore them through the lens of the Buddha's teachings. This is Wise View, and thus everything is practice because we are always practicing to be the person we will become. This is the teaching on karma, whose result is determined by our view and intention. Our investigation will require, as the Buddha says, "being ardent, alert, and mindful, putting aside greed and distress with reference to the world." Simple instructions, but not an easy task.

In the Satipatthana Sutta (MN 10), the above words are the Buddha’s instructions for approaching each of the four foundations of mindfulness (body, feelings, mind-states, mental phenomena). Each moment, as the world presents itself to our sense gates, the content of experience is just the data of a perceptual apparatus (form, feeling, perception, mental formations, consciousness). He invited us to be mindful of whatever is arising, excluding nothing. And he also said that it matters how we respond to our experience because all karma is made and passed on by formations (intentions). How we relate to experience is crucial because the quality of our intentions, wholesome or unwholesome, will shape whether our response is skillful or unskillful. How we are in each moment will determine who we will become in the next moment. If we continue to divide our inner experience and seal off the parts of ourselves we don't want to see, then we will only bring that division into our actions in the outer world. Only through integration of the whole will we begin to move toward a direct understanding of our interconnection with all things, even those on "the other side of the aisle."

So, in that moment on November 6th, when the political world presents your perceptual apparatus with the results of the election and all that follows, how will you engage the data? No matter what the result, the experience offers each of us an opportunity for practice, and then a choice as to whether we respond skillfully or unskillfully. This will determine who really wins or loses. And remember, the Buddha said we are owners of only one thing in this world - our actions. We invite you to observe what you win or lose in response to how you shape your intentions.

No matter what the world reports on November 6th, may we all discover the wisdom that brings the freedom of release.
Phyllis Hicks, Cynthia Hughey, Jeanne van Gemert, and Ron Vereen

Addendum: These opening remarks for the newsletter were written prior to the events of this past weekend -- the massive destruction and disruption that has ensued in the aftermath of Hurricane Sandy. We invite you to continue to use all that unfolds in our lives as opportunities for practice, and to turn the warmth of your heart toward those who are suffering, letting that warmth quite naturally take the shape of compassion. May all beings be free of suffering; may they all have the strength and courage to face what lies ahead; and as a result of moving through this difficulty, may they have greater wisdom and compassion.

Wednesday Meditation Group

All levels of meditation experience are welcome, and the teachings are offered free of charge, with donations accepted to cover costs of using the facility and to support the study of the teachers. Opening to Life:
A New Year's Insight Dialogue Retreat with Phyllis Hicks and Florence Meleo-Meyer

"All experience is preceded by mind."  Buddha

We go through much of life living out of habit. Coasting along on autopilot, we are unaware of the underlying views that shape our perceptions and create the very lives we lead. A simple pause into mindfulness and wisdom can shift our thoughts and perceptions yielding insight and release from stress.

Join us for a 3 day residential retreat to contemplate the experience of releasing habitual views, trusting emergence, and opening to life's wisdom. We will cultivate the qualities of mind that blossom naturally into open, wise and compassionate presence in our daily lives.

The practice of Insight Dialogue draws together the stillness of concentration, the brightness of mindfulness, and the deep wisdom of Buddhist teachings. We explore our moment-to-moment experience while meditating in dialogue with others.

Changes to Insight Dialogue at Triangle Insight

Thank you all for your generous feedback on the July survey about your experiences at Triangle Insight. Many expressed interest and concerns about Insight Dialogue. The new website for Insight Dialogue is an excellent resource for learning more about the practice: http://www.metta.org.

There are two changes we will add to the format for our Follow the outstanding school for which our sangha has provided support local Insight Dialogue practice. The first is an invitation for anyone who chooses, to remain in silent practice, rather than shifting into dyad practice, when a contemplation is offered. One can investigate the guidance internally, noticing the moment by moment unfolding of internal experience. The second is, with the shift back to meeting at 6:30 this month, the ID practice will go from 6:30 to 8:30 to allow for more spaciousness and time for questions. We hope you will be able to join us.

Fourth Wednesdays
Triangle Insight, Episcopal Center at Duke

Suggestions from the Sangha
Goings-on in the Community

In response to suggestions that have been submitted from sangha members, we decided to add this section in the newsletter where we would list a variety these activities for everyone to view. These events could be study groups, social gatherings, and any classes or other events that you consider relevant to the mission of our sangha. If you would like something included, please submit your request by the 20th of each month to info@triangleinsight.org. Also, please feel free to give us feedback about this addition to the newsletter.

Dharma Contemplation Group

Interested in "preparing for a meeting with the unknown?"

Dharma Contemplation is a companion practice to Insight Dialogue. Like ID it was developed by Gregory Kramer. In Dharma Contemplation we immerse ourselves in a short excerpt of the Buddha's words and allow them to transform us. By first hearing and then repeatedly reading the text, it saturates our minds. Layer after layer, joined in mindfulness and inquiry, we deepen our understanding and experience of the teachings as we contemplate them together in a small group.

Join us on the fourth Sunday of every month from 3:30 - 5:00. Email Beverly at beverly143@frontier.com, or call Tamara at 919-493-2674, x 114 for more information. Upcoming meetings in 2012: 11/25, and 12/30.

Social Gatherings, Pot Lucks, etc:

Several of you have expressed a desire for more events within which sangha members might have the opportunity for socializing, commenting on how the holiday and Triangle Insight birthday parties have thus far facilitated more of this type of interaction. We welcome this idea and would invite any of you who are interested to consider forming a social committee for the sangha as a way to plan and coordinate these events. If you are interested, email us at info@triangleinsight.org and we will connect you with one another. On a more informal basis, some members are already gathering together before or after the meetings. If you would like to invite others using this forum, we can include your announcement as well.

Book Study Group

on Stepping Out of Self-Deception

This study group led by Ron Vereen has been meeting since February 2011, and has completed reading Rodney Smith's book, Stepping Out of Self-Deception. Many in the group expressed interest in taking the exploration further using this same text, and in view of the robust response, Ron has decided to have two groups so as to accommodate as many as possible, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. There is now a wait list for participation, so if interested in being placed on the list in the event space opens up, or if you have questions, please contact Ron at rivereen@aol.com.

One Heart in Durham

Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction Classes
Duke Integrative Medicine

For those of you who would like to have a progressive and systematic instruction in a variety of mindfulness practices from the healthcare perspective, you may want to consider taking one of the classes of the Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction Program at Duke Integrative Medicine. This is an eight-week class that uses a variety of forms of practice to examine the stress in one’s life and to help bring about a more skillful way of relating to it. The next cycle will begin with an orientation session the week of January 7, with classes beginning the week of January 14, and running through the week of March 4, with a Day of Mindfulness on February 23. A variety of class times are offered in both Durham and Raleigh/Cary, and financial assistance in defraying some of the cost is available for those who may have that need. In addition, a distance learning class is now offered for those who are unable to attend on site, as well as a research class for qualified participants. For more information or to register, call 919-660-6826 or go to http://www.dukeintegrativemedicine.org. Classes often fill, so you may want to register early.

Other Resources

In addition to Triangle Insight, there are a variety of other meditation opportunities of which we would like for you to be aware. Rather than list them all here, we wanted to point you to the "links" section of our website at Triangle Insight. There are other sitting groups in the community who's practice is similar to ours, as well as resources for retreat centers and other websites, both locally and nationally. We do not offer an endorsement of these sites, but rather a suggestion for your exploration to see if any may have useful information to support your practice of insight meditation. For any questions please contact us at info@triangleinsight.org

Triangle Insight is a Non-Profit!

In December we announced our recent classification as a non-profit with the State of North Carolina, and in June we completed our application to the IRS for designation as a 501(c)(3) religious organization. While we are now officially a non-profit moving towards our 501(c)(3) status with the IRS, we wanted to thank people who volunteered to help us with a Board. Since the most consistent advice we received was to "keep it simple," the Board will consist of the four founding teachers. However, to grow, nourish and support our sangha we need input, advice and energy from us all and we are looking into how to best do that. Your suggestions are always appreciated. Please contact us at info@triangleinsight.org with any ideas or recommendations.
